

January Meeting – Geraldine Powell – Growing Cool Growing Orchids in Uncool Places
Thursday, January 19, 2012
8:00 p.m., Franklin Park Conservatory Classrooms
7:30 to 8:00 p.m. Beginner's Corner

Uncool Temps...Cool, Cool Growing Orchids

The Orchid Gallery's Geraldine Powell is an expert in growing cool loving orchids and the developer of the Cool Pot™ for Masdevallias, Miltoniopsis and various pleurothallids as well as the Never-Rot ceramic mount.

She is the co-owner of The Orchid Gallery in Chattanooga, TN, and has been growing orchids for more than 30 years. Her plants have won numerous AOS awards. And now I will let her tell you a little about herself.

“I have been growing orchids for over thirty years and have been involved in the orchid business for over twenty-five years. I have lectured extensively on various topics from Paphs., Phrags., Masdevallias, Miltoniopsis and other topics.

My first orchid was a Cattleya. I bought it because it smelled wonderful. The rest is history. My interests have changed over the years from Catts. to Paphs. and Phrags. to weird species and so on. I have always liked Masdevallias and Miltoniopsis but hesitated to try many of them because of their reputation for being cool growing. I grew a few of the warmer growing types but I really wanted coccinea and yungasensis and the like.

When we opened our nursery in Brooksville, Florida I set up a small greenhouse specifically for cool growers. My partner thought I was nuts. I guess she was right. But our cooler growing plants started to receiving AOS awards.

When we moved to Signal Mountain in Tennessee I continued with the cool growers. It might be a little cooler on the side of the mountain but I still had problems with the coolest growers. Over the first 2 years in Tennessee I developed Cool Pots. These have allowed us to grow a much wider variety Masdevallias. We began marketing Cool Pots about four years ago. Over the years I have learned a lot about growing Masdevallias and other cool growing orchids in a warm climate.

I'm looking forward to sharing what I've learned with your society.”

Geri will be bringing plants and pots for sale, so take a look at the web site, theorchidgallery.net, and pre-order or just bring your appetite for new solutions to old problems and a generously filled wallet. You are sure to find at least one plant or pot that just has to go home with you.

As usual, we will have our pre-meeting meet-and-greet dinner at Aladdin's on East Main Street just east of FPC at 6PM; all are welcome.

President's Message

Greetings. We start the new year with a new board and renewed enthusiasm. But at the November board meeting the question was raised, why an orchid society? Why COOS? As I prepared to answer those questions in my first message to you, I happened across Loren Pollock's end of the year message to the IOS. In it he captures my sentiments exactly. I can't do better than to steal Loren's words fair and square.

“It's that time again – the time of the year for family, friends, and good cheer. This is also the time of year to reflect.

Lc Blue Kahili 'Blue Delft'

Looking back when I first became a member, you couldn't find orchids at your local Home Depot or Trader Joe's. The internet was just picking up steam, so you were lucky to find anything about that new hybrid. Orchids just seemed more exotic (they certainly seemed more expensive). Back then, for me, orchid societies were the go-to source for orchids and how to care for them. Today however, the landscape looks a bit different.

We have forums and blogs, WiFi and 4G, YouTube and Facebook. Nothing more than few keywords in your favorite search engine will get the information you are looking for on that new hybrid. And that special orchid you are looking for? You can find it and order it online without a single phone call. Join an orchid society today? What's the point?

Well, for one, there isn't a single web site that I know of that will let me smell that Neofinetia falcata. I can't share a cup of coffee with a fellow grower on Facebook. And there is no catalog that will truly represent the color of my Cattleya 'Alec Baldwin'. I will never know what George's, home-made Mac and cheese tastes like on a blog. And no, you can't hug someone with a text message.

I guess what I am trying to say is that the IOS is a place to meet, learn and share, face-to-face with other like-minded individuals. I can touch the potting mix, smell the flowers, see the real colors, feel the pride, and shake someone's hand. The IOS has been my home for many years now (so many, that I am running out of fingers on which to count them). I enjoy and appreciate what the society has given me in knowledge and friendship, and I have enjoyed and appreciated the opportunity to return the same.

So, at this time of year I would like to wish all of you a happy and festive holiday season.

~ Loren”

Well said, Loren.

Our membership year is January to December. If you joined the society and you paid your dues in November or December of 2011, you are covered for 2012 as well. For all of the rest of us, it is time to begin the renewal process. You can pay your dues at the January meeting, or you can send a check to our membership chair. (made payable to "Central Ohio Orchid Society") Rich Wagener (8498 West Ohio State Lane, Lancaster, OH 43130). Please support the society by renewing as soon as possible. Your contribution enhances the society and what it is able to do for you. The dues are $15.00 for Individuals and $20.00 per household.

Notes from the November Meeting.

Here are the November showtable results. Impressive as ever with 42 plants in November of all months.

Ken Mettler, and Tennis Maynard I think did the judging and did well. Where the judges thought it appropriate additional place awards were made. As always, we encourage you to bring your blooming plants to the show table and share your skills and the beauty of your plants with your fellow members. We continue to need a little assistance from the membership to facilitate the show table results and the contest tally. Would you please print your name and the name of the plant clearly! It is really hard if someone has to guess at the name of the plant or of the exhibitor. It makes life a little easier if you include all of the info in an easily readable form. Thanks. Props to Tennis Maynard for the plant of the month, Maxillaria scalariformis. Very nice.

Annual Growers Contest

Congratulations to our 2010/2011 growing contest champions. Tom and Pat Stinson ran away from the rest of the greenhouse crowd and Tennis Maynard finished a very respectable second. Where have we seen that scenario before. Tough competition in the greenhouse division.

In the All You Others class, congrats to Dave and Edna Markley who flashed into first at the last moment and to Katrina Heap who finished a whisker close second. A great job by the winners and by all of the participants. We win as well because we get to spend the year checking out the beautiful blooms of all of our growers. .

And now we begin the 2011/2012 iteration of our annual growing contest. We all started dead even and while we have some leaders in the first turn, it is a long race and anyone can win. All you need is your skills, a little luck, we all know that plants bloom right after a meeting or show, and a little persistence. Let's have at it. The new contest year is on. If you have any disagreements with the totals let me know as soon as possible so that it can be set straight. Keep growing and showing those orchids.

Editor's Corner:

Ah 'tis a fine time of the year. The holidays are behind us, thankfully. As much as I enjoy them, paradoxically, I enjoy seeing them in the rear view mirror just as much. But now we are barreling into the New Year and the spring show season looms on the horizon. Spring, I think, is my favorite orchid season, except perhaps for fall, I do have a lot of fall blooming orchids, but spring is really best because it is show season. And I love orchid shows. I also love our spring show tables because each is a mini show in itself and on occasion rivals anything you would find at any, almost any, away show. You folks constantly mesmerize me with the variety and quality of the plants that you grow.

It is also the season of resolutions and here I am almost breaking my sole, or at least sole public orchid resolution which is to get this rag out by the 8th of each month. I could plead technical difficulties but those exist mostly in my head. I am shooting for the 8th forthwith and if I miss it call me on it. Pressure forges gems. Usually. It also forges coal, so we won't go too far down that road. I am looking for gems.

With this issue I also begin a swan song of sorts, sort of like a two year farewell tour. I have been doing the newsletter for at least six years though at times it seems much longer and may actually be so as my record keeping has, on occasion, been suspect. So...I hope to try new and interesting things over the next bit of time or so and will make one last appeal to each of you to be a part of the newsletter by letting me know what it is you would like this tome to provide. What should we add or explore or what should we delete, understanding that there are some sacred cows, i.e., the prez's message, the speaker intro, and the editor's corner, my rant zone. All else is open to discussion. It is after all, your society and I want this to reflect your interests and desires. For those of you who desire another newsletter editor, you will get your wish in two years, sorry about your luck.

With regard to my new summer orchid set up, I hope it is set up by this summer. I think I will make a continuing saga of its construction. It will veer here and there as does all of our lives, maybe you will find it interesting, maybe you will give me ideas on how to make it work better, maybe you will tell me to forget it. Sounds like a plan. .

May your plants live long and prosper. May you live longer.

Bill.

We would like to express a heart felt thank you to Scott Bever, Sandy Stohr, Naila Caruso, and anyone else who provided the goodies at the October meeting. If I have overlooked you please accept my apology.

And, we would like to offer the usual huge thank you, in advance, to all of you who have signed up to provide snacks and goodies for the upcoming meetings, volunteers are listed below. For the future, as ever, the months with a red volunteer needed notice, need a volunteer. I am sure you would make Dave and Edna Markley, our hospitality chairs, breathe easier if they could start getting volunteers for next year.

David and Edna Markley are our mavens of hospitality. So, for those of you who just can't wait to participate, please give the Markley's a call or sign up at the next meeting. Let them know you would like to add your name to the merriment roster.
